CrossKeys Tavern Port	$70
------------------------------------	------	--

VA

Richly sweet but not cloying—this is not a wine reserved for after dinner cheese courses though it would pair nicely with a classic Stilton. Aged two years in oak which transforms the alcohol into a warm and inviting finish. This wine is sturdy enough to evolve the complexity after being open for up to one week; look for the floral notes to transform into berry cobbler.

It's the 1920s in Chicago and prohibition is in full swing. Secret mob controlled speakeasies are popping up all across the city in order to keep the public happy while using these establishments as a way to launder more and more cash. Supply lines are being cut and the police have begun to crack down, causing the mob to resort to more aggressive measures in order to keep their operation safe. You find yourself at The Bonfire Club, on an unassuming night when a mysterious piece of information comes across your table while enjoying your meal. The series of events which follow could be your last if you're not careful.
